Now and again, by way of example, rigorous prohibitions are issued in certain districts, and the people have to bow less remunerative crops. It would seem Mr. Wotton's case was taken as appointed. His that a spasmodic fit of virtuous zeal has lately laid hold of the Chihli officials, for the poppy has been sternly proscribed in the north-east part of Chihli, and few of the agriculturists have dured to disobey the proclamation. In Shingking, too, the law against the production of the drug has been invoked, and the crop there is likely to be short also. There is every reason to believe that the Imperial Decree forbidding the cultivation of the poppy might be enforced without much difficulty in every province -save, perhaps, Yunnan, if the officials were not wilfully blind to the scarlet flowers which are so conspicuous a feature in the landscape in numerous provinces. It is Egypt if necessary. pleaded that the Chinese people would raise opiom under any circumstances, and to prevent it. This assertion has again and again been proved to be without foundation. in many cases; the higher mandarins possess arbitrary and almost unlimited powers and can at will use them against individuals whom they often need but to suspect in order to condemn. Do the Chinese officials exercise their authority to suppress the growth of opium in China? We say emphatically not; the official opposition to the drug is confined to a few mandarins, who, like the "Anti-Opium agitators in England, are desirous of posing as philanthis end. What the Chinese Government are really auxious about, however, is to make a large revenue out of opium, whether it be foreign or native. To this end the Peking authorities have managed to draw out the negotiations with Sir Thomas WADE in reference to the Chefoo Convention to and CHINA, the New Treaty between Ger. a wearisome length. They have professed MANY and CHINA, a translation of the TREATY to wish to have that celebrated agreement. between Spain and Annan signed in 1880 to., ratified, but it seems that they can come to no agreement with the British Minister on the import and lekin duties on opium. The Chinese desire to fix the rate at a point far higher than the British Minister, having regard to the interests of India, can agree to, and so the negotiations hang fire. Whether the Peking officials are animated with a simple desire to add at one swoop a large lump to the rovenue, by squeezing a luxury to the extremest point, or whether they hope thus to so handicap the Indian drug as to render its competition with the native product hopeless we cannot readily determine But we are certainly not prepared to believe what the anti-opium agitators would fain persuade us, namely, that the Chinese Government only wish to make the tax heavy to ren-

ALAS, SO LONG! Ah! dear one, we were young so long, It seemed that youth would never go, For skies and trees were over in song, And water in singing flow, In the days we never again shall know. Alan, so long !

Ahl then, was it all spring weather? Nay; but we were young and together. Ah! dear one, I've been old no long, It seems that age is loth to part. Though days and years have never a song. And, oh! have they still the art That warmed the pulses of heart to heart

Alas, so long l Ah! then, was it all spring wonthor? Nay; but we were young and together. Ah! dear one, you've been dead so long-How long until we meet again, Where hours may never lose their song. Nor flowers forget the rain.

In glad noonlight that never shall wane Alas, so long! Ah! shall it be then spring weather? And ah! shall we be young together? D. G. Rossetti.
